Scott Rankin is a '85 graduate, Shippensburg University (Finance). He began his career with ACandS, an international mechanical insulation and abatement contractor in 1985 as an Estimator Trainee in Philadelphia and promoted to Sales Representative in 1987. In 1992, Scott was named Contract Manager for the Philadelphia operation. In 1993, Scott accepted a promotion to Manager of Field Support in the corporate office in Lancaster, PA. During his tenure in Lancaster, he completed his graduate studies at St. Joseph's University and earned an MBA. Scott returned to field operations in 1996 and was soon asked to assume leadership responsibility for Pyro-Stop in 1998. As president of Pyro-Stop, Scott has grown the business by broadening its customer base, range of contract services and geographic coverage. He developed the company's FM Approvals FMG 4991 program and is a qualified DRI for FM 4991, and has passed the UL Firestop Exam. Throughout his career, Scott gained extensive experience in both the institutional, commercial and industrial markets and has managed projects ranging from 60 story hotels to casinos to fossil fuel power station outages.

Scott (and Pyro-Stop) is a Charter Member of the FCIA and has previously served as Director for 9 years. As Director, he held the offices of Secretary, Vice President and President. In addition to these positions, Scott served as Program Committee chairman for ten years, is acting as chair of the editorial committee of Life Safety Digest Magazine and Finance Committee chairman. He continues to offer financial and administrative policy & procedure recommendations for the Board's consideration. Scott regularly attends IFC (International Firestop Council) meetings as a representative of his company and FCIA liaison.

At home, Scott is partnered with Diane, his wife of 24 years. Diane is a high school teacher for the Souderton Area School District and a son and daughter; Taylor, 19 (University of Delaware sophomore), and Kaitlyn 18 (Kutztown University freshman). Scott spends his free time coaching a high school ice hockey team. Camping and travel are summertime activities while skiing is a wintertime favorite.
